

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA

BRIAN ZACCARDELLI,

Petitioner,

v.

CIVIL ACTION NO. 1:07cv119
(Judge Keeley)

WAYNE PHILLIPS, Warden

Respondent.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

I. BACKGROUND

On September 7, 2007, the pro se petitioner, Brian Zaccardelli, an inmate at FCI-Morgantown, filed an Application for Habeas Corpus Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §2241, seeking an order directing the Bureau of Prisons to transfer him to a Community Corrections Center (“CCC”) or halfway house for the last six months of his term of imprisonment. On September 17, 2007, petitioner paid the required $5.00 filing fee. Upon preliminary review, and for the reasons set forth below, the undersigned finds that summary dismissal is warranted.

II. FACTS

On December 14, 2006, petitioner was sentenced in the United District Court for the Northeastern District of Ohio to a twenty-seven (27) month term of confinement for conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute cocaine hydrochloride and marijuana in violation of 21 U.S.C. § 841(a)(1), (b)(1)(a) and 846. (Case No. 1:06cr338-JG-21). Assuming good time credit, petitioner’s projected release date is January 28, 2009. Petitioner was designated to FCI Morgantown.

III. CONTENTIONS OF THE PETITIONER

Petitioner raises the following ground in his Application for Habeas Corpus:

(1) The Bureau of Prisons' policy of transferring prisoners to a CCC¹ for the last 10 % of their term of imprisonment has been ruled unconstitutional.

IV. HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

Prior to December 2002, the BOP had a policy of placing prisoners in a CCC for up to six months, regardless of the total length of the inmate's sentence. See BOP Program Statement 7310.04. However on December 13, 2002, the Office of Legal Counsel for the Department of Justice issued a memorandum stating that this practice was inconsistent with 28 U.S.C. § 3624(c) which, in its opinion, limited an inmate's placement in a CCC to the lessor of six months or ten percent of the inmate's sentence. Section 3624(c) provides as follows:

The Bureau of Prisons shall, to the extent practicable, assure that a prisoner serving a term of imprisonment spends a reasonable part, not to exceed six months, of the last 10 per centum of the term to be served under conditions that will afford the prisoner a reasonable opportunity to adjust to and prepare for the prisoner's re-entry into the community. The authority provided by this subsection may be used to place a prisoner in home confinement. The United States Probation System shall, to the extent practicable, offer assistance to a prisoner during such pre-release custody.

The BOP adopted the Office of Legal Counsel's interpretation of the statute, and numerous habeas petitions challenging the December 2002 Policy were filed. The First and Eighth Circuits, as well as many district courts, ² found the policy contrary to the plain meaning of 18 U.S.C. § ¹The Bop now refers to such centers as Residential Release centers ("RRC"). For purposes of the Report, however, the undersigned will continue to refer to these facilities as CCCs.

²See Goldings v. Winn, 383 F.3d 17 (1st Cir. 2004); Elwood v. Jeter, 386 F.3d 842 (8th Cir. 2004); Cato V. Meniffee, 2003 WL 22725524 at *4 (S.D.N.Y. Nov. 20, 2003 (collecting

3621(b) which states:

The Bureau shall designate the place of the prisoner's imprisonment. The Bureau may designate any available penal or correctional facility that meets minimum standards of health and habitability established by the Bureau, whether maintained by the Federal government or otherwise and whether within or without the judicial district in which the person was convicted, that the Bureau determines to be appropriate and suitable, considering -

- (1) the resources of the facility contemplated;
- (2) the nature and circumstances of the offense;
- (3) the history and characteristics of the prisoner;
- (4) any statement by the court that imposed the sentence -
 - (A) concerning the purposes for which the sentence to imprisonment was determined to be warranted; or
 - (B) recommending a type of penal or correctional facility as appropriate; and
- (5) any pertinent policy statement issued by the Sentencing Commission pursuant to section 994(a)(2) of title 28.

In response to those decisions, the BOP created new regulations in 2005 governing the placement of inmates in CCCs. These regulations state that the BOP was engaging in a "categorical exercise of discretion" and choosing to "designate inmates to [CCC] confinement ... during the last ten percent of the prison sentence being served not to exceed six months." 28 C.F.R. § 570.20-21. The new regulation expressly prohibits placement of prisoners in CCCs prior to the pre-release phase of imprisonment and provides:

When will the Bureau designate inmates to community confinement?

cases).

(a) The Bureau will designate inmates to community confinement only as part of pre-release custody and programming, during the last ten percent of the prison sentence being served, not to exceed six months.

(b) We may exceed the time-frames only when specific Bureau programs allow greater periods of community confinement, as provided by separate statutory authority (for example, residential substance abuse treatment program ... or shock incarceration program) ...

28 C.F.R. § 570.21. (Emphasis added)

It is this regulation which prompts the petitioner's habeas challenge in the instant case.

IV. ANALYSIS

A. Whether Petition Raises Issues Which Are Ripe for Adjudication

The Supreme Court has recognized that “[t]he ripeness doctrine ‘is drawn from both Article III limitations on judicial power and from prudential reasons for refusing to exercise jurisdiction.’” Nat’l Park Hospitality Ass’n v. Dep’t of Interior, 538 U.S. 803, 807 (2003). “The central concern of both power and discretion is that the tendered case involves uncertain and contingent future events that may not occur as anticipated, or indeed may not occur at all.” Metzenbaum v. Fed. Energy Regulatory Comm’n, 675 F.2d 1282, 1289-1290 (C.A.D.C. 1982) (citations omitted). The basic rationale of ripeness is to prevent the courts, through avoidance of premature adjudication, from entangling themselves in abstract disagreements over administrative policies, and also to protect the agencies from judicial interference until an administrative decision has been formalized and its effects felt in a concrete way by the challenging parties. The problem is best seen in a two fold aspect, requiring us to evaluate both the fitness of the issues for judicial decision and the hardship to the parties of withholding court consideration.

Abbott Laboratories v. Gardner, 387 U.S. 136, 148-49 (1967) (overruled on other grounds).

In this case, petitioner is anticipating that the BOP will apply 28 C.F.R. § 570.21 in a manner so as to limit his eligibility for placement in a CCC to the last 10% of his sentence. Because at least four Courts of Appeals have found that the BOP regulation limiting a prisoner's placement in a CCC to the lessor of ten percent or six months of his sentence was an improper exercise of the BOP's rulemaking authority, the petitioner seeks a preemptive ruling requiring the BOP to place him in a CCC for the last six months of his sentence.³

However, even if this Court were to agree with the four Courts of Appeals, this would mean only that the petitioner must be considered for CCC placement for the last six months of incarceration, not that this Court can order his placement.⁴ A careful reading of the four appellate decisions clearly establishes that the BOP regulations have been held invalid only to the extent that they limit a prisoner's placement in a CCC to the lessor of 10% of his sentence or six months, without consideration of the five factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3621(b).

The decisions issued by the four Courts of Appeals do not apply to this petitioner because he is not yet near the end of his sentence term. While Congress has mandated CCC placement for ³The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals has not yet ruled on the legality of 28 C.F.R. § 570.21. However, the Third, Eighth, Second, and Tenth Circuits have ruled the same improper. See Woodall v. Federal Bureau of Prisons, 432 F.3d 235 (3rd Cir. 2005); Fults v. Sanders, 442 F.3d 1088 (8th Cir. 2006); Levine v. Apker, 455 F.2d 71 (2nd Cir. 2006); Wedelstedt v. Wiley, 477 F.3d 1160 (10th Cir. 2007).

federal prisoners, at best, that placement is not required until the last six months of incarceration.⁵ However, in order to facilitate that placement, under P.S. 7310.04, the BOP considers an inmate for CCC placement when he or she is within eleven to thirteen months of his or her projected release date. The petitioner's projected release date is January 28, 2009, more than sixteen months after he filed his § 2241 petition. While petitioner may have been informally told that he would be eligible for transfer to CCC for only the last 10% of his incarceration, or approximately seventy days, he has not even been deemed eligible for CCC placement yet. Only when petitioner is within eleven to thirteen months of his projected release date will his Unit Team assess his eligibility for CCC placement and complete an official CCC referral. At that time, petitioners' claim may be ripe for review, depending on the circumstances of the Unit Teams official referral.

If petitioners' Unit Team recommends CCC placement for the last six months of his term of incarceration, then he will have received the maximum benefit for which 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c) provides, and he will have no need of this Court's intervention. Furthermore, if his Unit Team considers the five factors and makes a referral of less than six months, the petitioner may or may not have a basis for filing a petition for habeas relief. However, if his Unit Team relies on 28 C.F.R. § 570.20-21 and recommends a categorical placement in a CCC facility of 138 days (i.e., the last 10% of his total sentence),⁶ then this matter may be ripe for a habeas petition pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § ⁵The statutory mandate for placement of an inmate in pre-release custody is set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3624(c). Under this provision, petitioner may receive up to a six month stay in a CCC.

⁶In light of the decisions made by the Second, Third, Eighth Circuits and Tenth Circuits, as well as the decisions issued by Judge Bailey and Judge Stamp, when reviewing petitioner's eligibility for CCC placement during the appropriate review time, it may be prudent for the BOP to consider the five factors set forth in 18 U.S.C. § 3621(b). To reiterate, those factors include: (1) the resources of the facility contemplated; (2) the nature and circumstances of the offense; (3)

IV. RECOMMENDATION

Based on the foregoing, the undersigned recommends that the petitioner's §2241 petition (Doc. 1) be DENIED and DISMISSED WITHOUT PREJUDICE.

Any party may file, within ten (10) days after being served with a copy of this Recommendation, with the Clerk of the Court, written objections identifying the portions of the Recommendation to which objections are made, and the basis for such objections. A copy of such objections should also be submitted to the Honorable Irene M. Keeley, United States District Judge. Failure to timely file objections to the Recommendation set forth above will result in waiver of the right to appeal from a judgment of this Court based upon such Recommendation. 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1); Thomas v. Arn, 474 U.S. 140 (1985); Wright v. Collins, 766 F.2d 841 (4th Cir. 1985); United States v. Schronce, 727 F.2d 91 (4th Cir. 1984), cert. denied, 467 U.S. 1208 (1984).

The Clerk of the Court is directed to mail a copy of this Report and Recommendation to the pro se petitioner by certified mail, return receipt requested, to his last known address as reflected on the docket sheet..
